The President said: I will again state why I hold the point of order made by the Senator from Rowan not to be well taken. If a Senator's resignation is bound to be accepted by the Senate as soon as tendered, he may be guilty of gross violation of law and of the rules of order, and may avoid expulsion or censure, or such other punishment as his conduct deserves, or which this body may choose to inflict, by tendering his resignation. A Senator may be guilty of an offence during a recess, which is wholly unworthy of the high position which he oceupies, calculated to bring scandal upon this body and reproach upon himself, and if he, by simply tendering his resignation, can vacate his seat, he may well defy this body, and thus escape the punishment which he may richly deserve.
